> COLLIERY CATASTROPHE; 180 MINERS ENTOMBED 220 FEET UNDERGROUND

(CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.) of 14th district reached Harwick about 7:30. When seen by an Associated Press reporter, just after his arrival, he said: 'I went to Greensburg to inspect a mine this afternoon, and when I reached home of this disaster. The mine where the exolosion took place was inspected, I think, about the first of December. There was some gas in there then, but I never considered the mine dangerous."

July, 17, 1903, but it is evident that a later report has been torn off.

TWO MEN DIED. Late to-night Manager Scheets telegraphed to Chief Mine Inspector J. A. Roderick at Harrisburg as follows: "Two outside men died of injuries this evening. But one brought out of the shaft, who is still living. Rescuing party in mine, including Mine Inspector Cunningham, who will advise later."

H. F. Hutchinson, who gave out the lamps to the miners before they went to work in the pit this morning, said: "At 7:30 o'clock, the time when the whistles blew and when every one is supposed to be at work at the mine, I had given out between 180 and 190 lamps, which was one lamp to a man, and not one lamp has been returned." There is a light in every cottage in the little hamlet above the pit mouth. There is still a crowd at the mouth of the shaft, but it will probably be hours before the full extent of the catastrophe is known.

The little school house has already been prepared as a morgue and hospital. The benches and seats have all been removed and eight girls from the highest class at the school have been impressed as nurses. Doctors have been summoned from surrounding towns of Springdale and Denny and also from Pittsburg, but nothing can be done until further details come from the mine. MANY HEROES.

There were many heroes in oilskins and overalls and with grimy hands, gathered around that black hole to-night. At every call there were always men enough to man the bucket. Again and again the men were driven back to the fresh air and the heat of the boller rooms, but only to return. At the entrance to the mine a great trial in the work of rescue, have been the wives and daughters of the men entombed. Beneath the rough exterior of the manager of the mine, according to the men who toll for him, there beats a tender heart, but work to be done and as night crowded down over the hills the women with sad eyes edged nearer to the edge of the hole he was forced to send them back. Then Selvin M. Taylor, with a hammer in his hand and his hair showing white under his dark hat, tapped the edge of the iron cage twice and then gave the signal "down." hree or four times the man, peering over the edge of the shaft, signaled the engineer to stop, but finally the cage reached the bottom and the men clambered out into the wrecked mine.

The Allegheny Coal Company, which owns the Harwick mine, is a Cleveland concern. The company owns and operates 4,500 acres of land, all near Cheswick. It was incorporated in Pennsylvania May 20, 1901, with a capital stock of $600,000, fully issued, but none of its authorized bond issue of $200,000 has yet been sold. The officers are: President, H. A. Hawgood; vice president, J. E. E. Terry; treasurer, Sheldon Parks; secretary, C. L. Terry.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 26, 2:30 a. m.-There was great rejoicing among the crowd of at 12:15 this morning when the rescuers came to the surface and announced that from fifty to seventy-five miners had been found. Rescuer Wood said he had discovered the engineer in Room 8, near the south entrance, and with him the fifty or seventy-five others, all unconscious, but alive. The hopes of the crowd, however, were rudely shattered at 2:25 o'clock, when the body of Selwin Taylor was brought to the surface. He had evidently been dead for several hours and now hopes for the other imprisoned men have been aban-

The rescuers are being brought out coated with ice, drenched to the skin and unable to walk. They report that the dead are scattered one above the other as thick as pine needles. Water is fast pouring into the mine, covering the corpses with a shroud of ice and making the work of rescue almost impossible. Afterdamp is collecting in quantities. Dr. McCullough, of Cheswick, who had been in the mine for two hours, has just come to the surface, and told the Associated Press representative that in his opinion none of the miners who was in the shaft at the time of the explosion is alive. COLLISION ON A BRIDGE:

a Wreck on the Burlington Road.

DEBRIS BURNED BRIDGE

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 26.-The Denver express, due here at 6:35 o'clock last night, was run into from the rear by a local passenger train while taking water at Gardeen creek, about forty miles north of here, last night and three passengers were killed, four serlously injured, and seven badly hurt. The wreck occurred on a bridge over Gardeen creek. The bridge and two cars of the local train and the local engine were

The express train was running behind time because of the blizzard weather, and had stoped at a tank, just after clearing the bridge, to take water. Suddenly, without warning, the local train crashed into the senger cars of the local train were badly demolished, and the bridge was filled with debris, which took fire. Word reached St. Charles, eight miles distant, and assistance was immediately sent from there, and a wrecking train was dispatched from here, followed by a relief train with physicians.
At 12:30 o'clock a. m., a train was expected in over the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road bearing the dead and injured, and two ambulances were ordered to the union station in readiness. But apparently the train was snow-bound, for at 1 o'clock it had not arrived, and no definite information of names of the dead and injured could be secured until the train came in.

A long distance telephone message from St. Charles at midnight was to the effect that the rear sleeper of the Denver express stood on the bridge when the colli-sion occurred. The sleeper was badly smashed, but not demolished. The locomo tive of the local train was crushed and set fire to the bridge and the structure and two cars of the local train were burned. The express train managed to draw the damaged sleeper away from the flames. It is presumed the casualties occurred in the local train, but how many the sleeper is not known.

It is stated that the trainmen escaped by jumping, but that the local fireman was badly injured. Because of the burned bridge traffic is suspended until a temporary structure can be erected. The local train was the Hannibal accommedation, due at St. Louis at 8:20 o'clock, and was running almost on time, at a speed of twenty miles an hour. At 2:05 o'clock the relief train had no arrived, but was making its way slowly over the track and in the face of a blinding snowstorm. Contrary to earlier reports, it was then stated that several trainmen were hurt. Engineer John Nunns, of the accommodation train, stuck to his post, and it is believed he is under the debris, as he cannot be found. Accommodation Conductor B. I.
